It has been a very special week at school. We have been fortunate that we have been able to share our Nativity plays with parents and attend the pantomime in Hereford Courtyard Theatre as well.

Indeed we have managed to carry on with business as usual and enjoy Christmas so far. The quality of our productions were outstanding: the children excelled and the general sense of enthusiasm and joy they evidentially had in performing to you all, was wonderful to see. It has been a pleasure to share in their happiness this week I am so grateful (as I'm sure you all are) to the teachers and teaching assistants who through their hard work and dedication have made it possible.

We have begun the Christmas parties this morning and again the children have had a tremendous time: they haven't stopped smiling all day. We do have more parties next week and the Christmas dinner on Tuesday plus the carol service on Thursday afternoon, so I am hoping that all these events can go ahead.

The carol service will be led by the older juniors and will be at St Laurence's church at 1:30 on Thursday. As we speak any parents of junior children can attend but of course we shall have to see if the situation changes next week.

We only have one pupil in school who has tested positive for Covid at the moment (and two members of staff) but I must ask you all to be vigilant and keep testing your children regularly.
